

Central to the building's innovation is its operation at the street level. A key design decision is to invite and engage those on the street to participate in the discussion. To do so the architect employs a hoisting system to suspend the building's equipment above

The challenge with having many travelling programs is implementing a continuous framework when the building has been dismantled and taken away.

Successfully the project has left the New York site on East 1st Street with a new paved courtyard and new park benches, re-invigorating the space as a place for locals to meet and hang out.

In Berlin, the legacy of the lab continues in multiple projects initiated by the Lab.

In Mumbai, the Lab itself is staying on site permanently..